In judicial remand by a special court of the central agency on Wednesday after spending a fortnight in CBI custody since his arrest on August 11.

On Thursday, trouble started when patients started protesting against the hospital authorities' decision to suddenly shut the outpatient department (OPD) ticket counters to avoid crowds. Many patients were angry that they had to leave without getting treated.

Some patients also got involved in a scuffle with the police as they shouted "goru chor (cow thief)" slogans in front of the cops brought him to the hospital around 11am.

"Why are the police harassing us in the name of providing security to a cow thief? I came here for the treatment of my brother who has lung disease. But he was denied treatment on the pretext that doctors are busy examining the 'Trinamul leader,'" said an angry Sambharnath.
